

Invitation to Authors: Journal of Medicinal Chemistry Perspective Series

The Perspective series of the Journal of Medicinal Chemistry is designed to provide an enlightened appraisal of a field of research in which experts review the state-of-the-art for a given topic. Authors have editorial freedom to express their views on the strategic directions of the field of research. The Perspective series provides a forum with high visibility within the pharmaceutical industry and academia. We would like the series to be useful to a broad range of scientists interested in the design, discovery, and development of novel medicines. We invite you to submit an idea for a Perspective, along with a brief outline. We also welcome your input regarding potential topics and authors for Perspective manuscripts, especially topics on emerging areas of interest to medicinal chemists. Please direct correspondence or calls regarding the series to:
